“ Although several years younger, Steve was a childhood friend, of me and my brother Jim. Both of us growing up in Seven Mile, would play croquet and baseball in our back yard on Miami Street where Jim and I lived. Following the tradition and brother hood of "elite" athletes of the small Southwestern High School of Seven Mile, I remember Steve as being an exceptional basketball player. Rather quiet and unpretentious, he was very well liked. Graduated at the top of his class, as I recall, and receiving the coveted Pulp and Paper Scholarship from Champion, we went on to Miami University and became an elite Corporate Executive. A good man, a good husband, a good father and friend, he left positive tracks in this world.
