“ Remembering Tim as a little boy. He and my cousin Brett were always with Diana and I on the days our moms took us to band camp. He loved taking his “big sister” there. RIP Tim. May God give your family comfort and peace

“ I'll always have fond memories of spending time as a kid with my Uncle Tim. His gift to me was exposing me to experiences I wouldn't have otherwise had. Building rockets (no matter how structurally unsound they were) that also had the tendency to blow up on the launchpad. And launching them at the airport, which I am sure was some kind FAA violation (ha!). Riding ATV's and giving me a 3-wheeler that would roll over at basically every opportunity and was the centerpiece of my single mom's worries about my safety. However, one trait he inherited from my grandfather was that he was a teacher. No matter what we were doing he would make sure I had a deep understanding of how something worked, the proper steps in a task, and the procedures to do even risky things safely. Those are lessons/skills I still carry with me and utilize today.
