“ Jenny, I am so sorry for your loss. I never knew Tristan, but from the way you talked about all of your kids it felt like I did. Praying for your family during this time.

“ I met Tristan in the hospital, along with his twin, shortly after they were born. I feel so fortunate to watch him grow into a man.

I saw him 55 days ago. I remember the exact conversation that we had while eating LaRosa's. They forgot the Marzetti Ranch dressing (my favorite) for my salad but Tristan gave me another Marzetti dressing that he had in the fridge and it was delicious. We talked about our favorite Italian restaurants and he told me that his mom made the best fettuccine in the world. I can still hear his voice in my head. Although, it may seem like a trivial exchange, I will cherish THIS memory among many others forever.

Rest In Peace, Tristan.

“ I met Tristan on March 28th. It was his first Professional Development Coaching Meeting with me. Tristian sought assistance with finding employment and long-term goals to become self-sufficient. Tristan was very kind, gentle, and articulate. He shared with me his passion for computers and established a long-term goal to work in Information Technology. He will be remembered forever in my mind for his bravery to face oppositions and overcome them. I felt honored to be his Career Coach and he will never be forgotten. Tristan, thank you for gracing me with your presence and allowing me to guide you with your employment goals.
