“ You taught me so much. To make something of myself. Go to school, college, eventually the military. I hope you and mom were proud. I am of you. I don't like, nor appreciate how you were basically forgotten in your last year's from supposed friends and family. You opened my eyes about just needing a select few to count on. How to treat people in a time of need. You were always there for others when they were not for you. As long as I breathe I will never forget. I love you dearly. You are my father, and will never be called anything less. Rest in peace dad, we will one day meet again !

“ We met Bill in December, 27 years ago, when and Janet came to Arkansas to visit their son Doug Bolser and family and to get acquainted with Doug's new in-laws, the Morris Sutherland and Wayne Raney families. We loved their visit and Bill was so funny and kept us all laughing with his sense-of-humor----One one occasion, Bill wanted to run up to the store and grab a local newspaper and maybe a little ice cream for everyone. The newspaper box was placed on the ground outside the convenience store and Bill put his money in to pay for the newspaper, but when he closed the door on the box, his new jacket got caught and he wasn't sure how he was going to get out of this mess. It was almost like being caught in a straight jacket inside an Arkansas jail. He pulled and tugged but couldn't get his jacket out of the locked newspaper box, and every time he stood up straight, he would lift the whole newspaper box off the ground. He decided to put more money in the box and maybe he could get the door open to remove his jacket, but that didn't work either. By that time, Bill was drawing an audience and he was getting so frustrated, he decided to rip his brand new jacket to pieces to get out of that predicament. That one local newspaper cost him a pretty Penney that day, and I don't think he ever made it back to the house with any ice cream. Bill will certainly be missed.

Rest In Peace, my friend. Morris and Wanda Sutherland
